

MR. MORGAN CALLER

Conference at White House by Invitation.

DISCUSS FINANCIAL MATTERS

New York Banker and George F. Baker, president of the First National Bank of New York, came to Washington last night for a conference with the President in regard to the financial situation.

Prior to keeping their appointment with the President, Mr. Morgan and Mr. Baker had a talk with Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Baker, accompanied by Robert Bacon, the Assistant Secretary of State, who was formerly a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., reached the White House at 10:30 o'clock and remained with Mr. Roosevelt until 11:30. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Baker spent the night at the Arlington Hotel.

Invited by President.

When Mr. Morgan, Mr. Baker, and Mr. Bacon left the White House they were surrounded by newspaper correspondents, to whom Mr. Morgan said in response to questions that he came over to Washington at the invitation of the President, and that he was glad to come and to pay his respects.

Saw Cortelyou First.

Mr. Morgan said that he had had a talk with Secretary Cortelyou before going to the White House. Mr. Cortelyou did not take part in the conference between the President and the New York financiers. In reply to a direct question, Mr. Morgan said that he had not suggested to the President any plan of permanent relief for the money situation through legislation.

PROBING TUNNEL WRECK.

Commissioners Will Begin Investigation Wednesday Afternoon.

Complying with a request of the Commissioners, Corporation Counsel Thomas yesterday submitted a report to that body relative to the powers of the Commissioners to make an investigation of the recent railroad accident at the entrance to the terminal tunnel. Mr. Thomas stated that the Commissioners have the power under an act of Congress to conduct such investigation and to summon witnesses and administer oaths for that purpose. As a result of the report, it was decided by the Commissioners to hold an investigation next Wednesday at 2 o'clock, with a view to fixing the responsibility and preventing a recurrence.

Many railway officials and employees, and others who have knowledge of the accident, will be summoned as witnesses to the investigation.

A full report of the accident, which was submitted by Mr. Sawyer, by Capt. Matthews, of the Fifth precinct, has been forwarded to the Commissioners.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Friday, Nov. 22, 1907.

The disturbance noted Thursday night as approaching the South Texas coast appears to-night to be off the Louisiana coast, and is as yet of very moderate character, although with the high area to the northward it has caused a continuance of the general rain in the Ohio, South Atlantic, and southern portion of the Middle Atlantic States.

There is another marked depression over the British Isles, but the immediate depression is absolutely dry east of the mountains, rains continuing over the North Pacific districts. On the interior of the States the weather was fair.

Temperatures are everywhere above the seasonal average, except in the Pacific States and the extreme Southeast. They are especially high in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, and the Northwest.

It will be rainy Saturday in the Middle and South Atlantic States and probably by night in Southern New England. Rain will also continue in the North Pacific States. For Sunday generally fair, but with the immediate depression it is likely to continue unsettled along the Middle Atlantic and New England coasts.

Temperatures will continue high for the season, and will rise Saturday in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys.

The winds along the New England coast will be light to fresh northwest to north; on the Middle Atlantic coast light to fresh north to northeast; on the South Atlantic coast light to fresh northeast to east; on the East Gulf coast light to fresh and variable; on the West Gulf coast light to fresh and variable; on the Lower Lakes coast light to fresh and variable; on the Upper Lakes coast light to fresh and variable, becoming southerly.

Mariners departing Saturday for European ports will have light to fresh northerly winds, with generally light to fresh to the Grand Banks.

TELLTALE LETTERS READ IN COURT.

Both Mrs. Bradley and Senator Brown were voluminous letter writers. When separated, they often wrote to each other several times a day.

So much addicted did they become to placing their thoughts concerning each other on paper that often they would write letters and hand them to each other.

In one of the letters written by Brown to Mrs. Bradley, read yesterday, he drew a parallel between himself, Mrs. Bradley, and Arthur Dimmesdale, the history of whose relations Hawthorne relates in "The Scarlet Letter."

This letter is dated at Nephi, Utah, in December, 1901, and is in part as follows:

"Mrs. Dollie Madison Brown.
"My Own Precious One: I was glad to see you in such courage this morning, but I know that you had been correspondingly depressed in the night. I wish I could express to you my exact feeling. I had it at Denver; have had it for days.
"I only think of the duty I owe you, the wrong I have done you and ours. I feel guilty that I am not always at your side, protecting you from insult and injury, but if not there in body, I will always be there in spirit. I cannot—I do not finish what I want to say when I am with you. I look backward, what a different man I would have been if I had married you in early manhood. How different you and I would have been had we met and both been free in 1890, and loved then as we do now. Perhaps that was an impossibility; true love does not come to you as a gift, but I think of it. How I would then have loved you, if the opportunity of knowing you had come to me.
"I read that sad, sad story of Arthur Dimmesdale and Hester Prynne while they ran down my cheeks—tears not for the action, but for the real tears for you, and me, and ours.
"Complete confidence and constant conference will keep us both in touch mentally and morally. You are braver than I, and I need your courage; but you go up and down one minute all in the dumps; the next is the highest heaven, and it is hard to depend on the humor you may be in. Love me as I love you. God knows I have never loved anything so much. You are my own dear wife—mine by true love, and your gift divine. I will try to protect you and serve you and make you happy, and will always be your own."

Another letter, written about the time that Mrs. Bradley had determined to leave him, at the earnest request of friends and of her pastor, Rev. David Utter, indicates Brown's feeling toward her at that time and his opposition to her returning to her husband. It is dated at Shoshone, Idaho, May 14, 1902, and is in part as follows:

"My True Love: I am leaving the farm, and leaving with regret. Would like to stay a few days longer, but Judge H. telegraphed to-day that I was needed, and I fear that the business (the source of all supply has been neglected) my own I go. On the whole, I think I will go. You are going to break off entirely with Clarence and never go back to him. I will take care of his children and see that they are properly brought up and educated, which is much more than ever he would or can do for them."

RELATIVES TELL OF MRS. BRADLEY

Brown was a drunkard, but said he was a steady drinker. He said that he had seen him drunk on several occasions. Maj. Samuel A. King was recalled by the defense, and completed his testimony, which was largely in corroboration of that given by Col. M. M. Kaighn.

Distressed Condition.

Mr. Barnes said that on each occasion when Mrs. Bradley visited him she was distressed, and appeared to be a very unhappy woman on account of Brown's treatment; but that, nevertheless, nothing would convince her Brown did not intend to marry her.

Mr. Barnes was succeeded on the stand by Judge Henry P. Henderson, who said he formed a partnership with Senator Brown in 1890. He said that he went to Utah in 1886, going there from Macon, Mich. He said he knew Martin Montgomery, practicing attorney in Michigan, who was afterward appointed as judge on the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and for awhile sat on the bench in Criminal Court No. 1, where Mrs. Bradley is now on trial. Brown also knew Judge Montgomery and named the second child of Mrs. Bradley after him.

He said he became acquainted with Mrs. Bradley some time between 1891 and 1893. He was asked if he had any conversation with Mrs. Bradley in which he ordered her to stay away from the law offices occupied by himself and Senator Brown, and he said he had, and detailed going to his office one night and before reaching there saw a light in the office. With a policeman he started across the street, he said, intending to go upstairs, when the light was turned out, and when they got to the bottom of the stairs they met Mrs. Bradley. He said to her: "Mrs. Bradley, you have been up in the office, have you not?" Mrs. Bradley said she had.

Made a Promise.

"I asked her by what authority," continued the witness, "and for what reason she went there. She said Senator Brown had told her to go. She had gone there for him. She said she supposed it was all right. I told her it was not all right, and she promised not to go there again."

"Do you remember sometime during the month of September, 1902, when we were called to the office, and upon arriving there, saw Senator Brown, Mrs. Bradley, and Mr. Livingston in the rooms?"

The witness replied he remembered being called, and when asked what Senator Brown said in reference to Mrs. Bradley, said:

"I was called to the office, and hurried from my residence. It was probably 6 o'clock when I got there. I hurried at a call from Mr. Livingston. When I arrived there I found Mr. Brown, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Bradley, and Mr. Livingston. I walked into the room where they were. I think Mrs. Brown was the first person I met. She said: 'Judge Henderson, I have come for you. Arthur has made a statement here and has promised to put it in writing, and I have had it written out by the stenographer and he refused to sign it.' Mr. Brown said he had refused to sign it at her dictation. This statement was: 'I say to you in your presence, my most bitter enemy, that I will compel Mrs. Brown to get a divorce from me, and if she does not I will get one myself, and that I will marry Mrs. Bradley.'"

A Curse to Him.

Judge Henderson, continuing, said Mrs. Bradley asked him to sign it, and he told her he would do anything for her, but would do nothing for Mrs. Brown. During this interview, Judge Henderson said that Senator Brown had said that Mrs. Brown had been a curse to him, that he would not resume relations with her, and that she knew it, or something to that effect.

Judge Henderson then detailed a long conversation he had with Mrs. Bradley, in the course of which she told him he did not know the extent of her relations with Brown, and that she had promised to secure a divorce from his wife. He said when he told her Brown had told him he was trying to get rid of her, she would bring her hands and appear to be in great agony, and would finally say it was all right; that it was according to their understanding.

It was about this period Judge Henderson said he determined to break away from his partnership with Senator Brown on account of his relations with Mrs. Bradley.

Judge Henderson would not commit himself to the statement that Senator Brown was a drunkard.

JAIL LABOR LEADERS

More Than Two Hundred Arrested at Havana.

RAIL IS REFUSED THE MEN

All Members of Labor Federative Committee Seized at Meeting—No Resistance Offered and Laborers Are Advised to Obey the Law and Submit to the Police.

Havana, Nov. 22.—The members of the labor federative committee, and others taking part in the labor movement, to the number of 250, were arrested this afternoon and lodged in jail, all being refused. Instructional Judge Miyeres, in view of many charges of violence and intimidation by strikers, eliminating yesterday in the stoning of working masons in the course of which one man was killed, concluded that the committee was responsible for all the outrages.

He ordered the secret police to arrest the members of the committee and all others present at a labor meeting scheduled for this afternoon, it being his theory that the latter would be there to receive orders as to who were to be attacked.

A builder named Quintana complained yesterday that his workmen had been assaulted and intimidated and Emilio Sanchez, the president of the federative committee, and Feliciano Prieto, its secretary, were arrested. They were released on bail of $200 each. 70-day Quintana made another complaint and Judge Miyeres canceled the bail bonds and ordered the arrest of all members of the committee.

Call on Municipal Police.

Eight secret police went to make the arrests, but finding so many involved they invoked the aid of the municipal police. It took three hours to transport the prisoners from the place of meeting to the police station in patrol wagons. Thence they were sent to jail for the night.

The prisoners represent all the different labor unions, but most of them are delegates of the striking railroad men and masons. President Alfonso, of the Railway Employees' Union, is among the prisoners. When the police arrived the meeting had not been formally opened, but they nevertheless proceeded to arrest everybody present. Manuel Secades, attorney for the Federation, to-night advised all laborers to obey the law and submit to the police.

Bankers will probably take from three to four million dollars of the $5,000,000 loan offered without interest by Gov. Magallon to relieve the planters, and they will not take the money until November 25. It is not believed that there are enough of the specified bonds in the island to offer as collateral for the full $5,000,000, and bankers are not inclined to buy bonds for the purpose.

PALAIS ROYAL

COUPON.

This Palais Royal Toilet Department Coupon and twenty-nine (29) cents entitles bearer to one Velvet Lined Case, containing Scissors, Nail Polisher, Nail File, Nail Cleaner, and Powder Box. This Coupon, good only for Saturday November 23, 1907.

REDUCED PRICES

But Only for This Morning

The fitting of Gloves takes time, which is very precious with us Saturday afternoon, when our little army of experts have more than they can attend to. Thus these specially reduced prices for the morning hours—until midday. Note that the most wanted of best Sunday Gloves are included, for gentlemen as well as ladies.

$1.39 Usually $1.50 The "Palais Royal" French Kid Gloves for ladies' and men's wear. None better imported. Try them.	$2.59 Usually $3 Best of Long Glace Kid Gloves; black, white, and colors; $2.59 if fitted before mid-day to-day.	$1.88 Usually $2.25 Long Silk Gloves, 20-button length, in all the evening shades. They need to be "fitted."

98c for Real $1.50 to $2 Kid Gloves

In these days of higher prices for reliable Gloves and of delusive "Seconds," and otherwise imperfect gloves at bargain prices, the purchaser has fared badly. These ladies' and gentlemen's reliable Kid, Reindeer, and Mocha Gloves at only 98c will create general rejoicing. Not fitted—we would fit them, but the great demand would overwhelm our little army of experts.

44c and 79c for Long and Comforting Gloves.

The French term them "Chevreau" finish, and they are all the name implies. We think a more descriptive name would be "Double Texture," because, while the surface is of Chevreau finish, the under portion is of some material that, while soft and warm, is not bulky, because attached to the upper layer. They are very long 16-button Gloves, in black and grays.

79c instead of $1

Leather Hand Bag, fitted with purse and new style soft leather handle. Belt, to match bag, is fitted with gun metal and French gilt buckles. 79c instead of $1, for to-day only.
